Raksha Bandhan Program at old age home

Aim:- The children of new generation are withdrawn from the cohabitation, blessings and love of their old aged parents. To give this opportunity to meet some of aged persons, almost every year the Dept. of Lifelong Learning & Extension arranges Rakshabandhan program of students to Panchvati Old Age Home, Nagpur.

Theme:- Aged parents are like children; they are sensitive. The India of today is intensely influenced by the western world where aged parents are forced either to live alone or stay at old age homes.

Outcome:- Dept. of Lifelong Learning and Extension, Shri. M. Mohota College of Science, Nagpur, is consistently organizing a program of “Raksha Bandhan” at “Panchvati” Old Age Home, Nagpur, since 2013. On this very occasion students of the Dept. tie a unique knot to the all the aged men and wished them happy & well being throughout the rest of their life. Also the aged peoples of the home felt that there grand-kids were there to wish them on the festival and they wholeheartedly welcomed them all by desiring a better future for them too. The Teachers, Staff & Students voluntarily donates food grains, fruits and some of the essential kits to the home.

Report of Sickle cell screening camp

Sickle cell screening camp was organized by Department of Zoology in association with Sickle Cell Association, Nagpur on 15th September 2017. Dr. Anuradha Shrikhande from Indira Gandhi Government Medical College, Nagpur was the guest speaker.

In this camp about 193 individuals were screened and few tested positive.

Sickle cell disease is a genetic disorder in which red blood cells are abnormal. The disease can cause many health problems.

Blood samples collected from participants were tested to determine if the individual has sickle cell disease or they are carrier of the disease. If an individual was tested as positive, then the individual was referred to a specialist and if an individual tested as carrier, then counselling session was provided by the doctors.

Sickle cell screening camps are important for identifying individuals with sickle cell disease or the carrier of the disease and providing them with education and support to manage their condition. It is an important step towards early detection and effective management of the disease, which will lead to better quality of life.

Report on Bone Density Camp held on 10th March 2018

Vitamin D deficiency and subsequently Calcium deficiency is very common in our country. This leads to osteoporosis particularly in women in middle ages. However, early detection and Calcium and Vitamin D supplementation can prevent the erosion of bones and the subsequent problems associated with it. Screening for common clinical conditions is the key to early diagnosis and treatment.

Hence the Bone Density Screening Camp was organized under the aegis of Women Cell of the institute on 10 March 2018 in collaboration with "Aapulki Hospital" run by Dr. Sushil Vairagade, a senior and renowned Orthopaedic Surgeon of the city.

49 participants, including post graduate girl students and teaching and non-teaching staff of the institute were tested for their bone density. Quantitative ultrasound measurement test was used for screening purpose. A substantial number of participants of middle age group were having less bone density. Treatment was also advised to them by Dr. Sushil Vairagade.

The conduct of the camp was appreciated by all the participants.
